

MENNATALLAH RIHAN

Ceramics

A portfolio of recent work

Hand-thrown and hand-built stoneware
Pieces photographed as fired · shown on one studio set

Earth-tone collection

Six related forms in tan, amber, and chocolate glazes

Carved cylinder

Tall cup or vase with wheat-stalk carving; tan rim over pooled chocolate glaze

Lidded jar

Rounded jar with knob lid; speckled amber shoulder over dark brown

Pour-over set

Conical dripper on a matching mug; reactive teal, cobalt, and copper

Mug and plate

Matching set in use; sage, teal, and cream reactive glaze

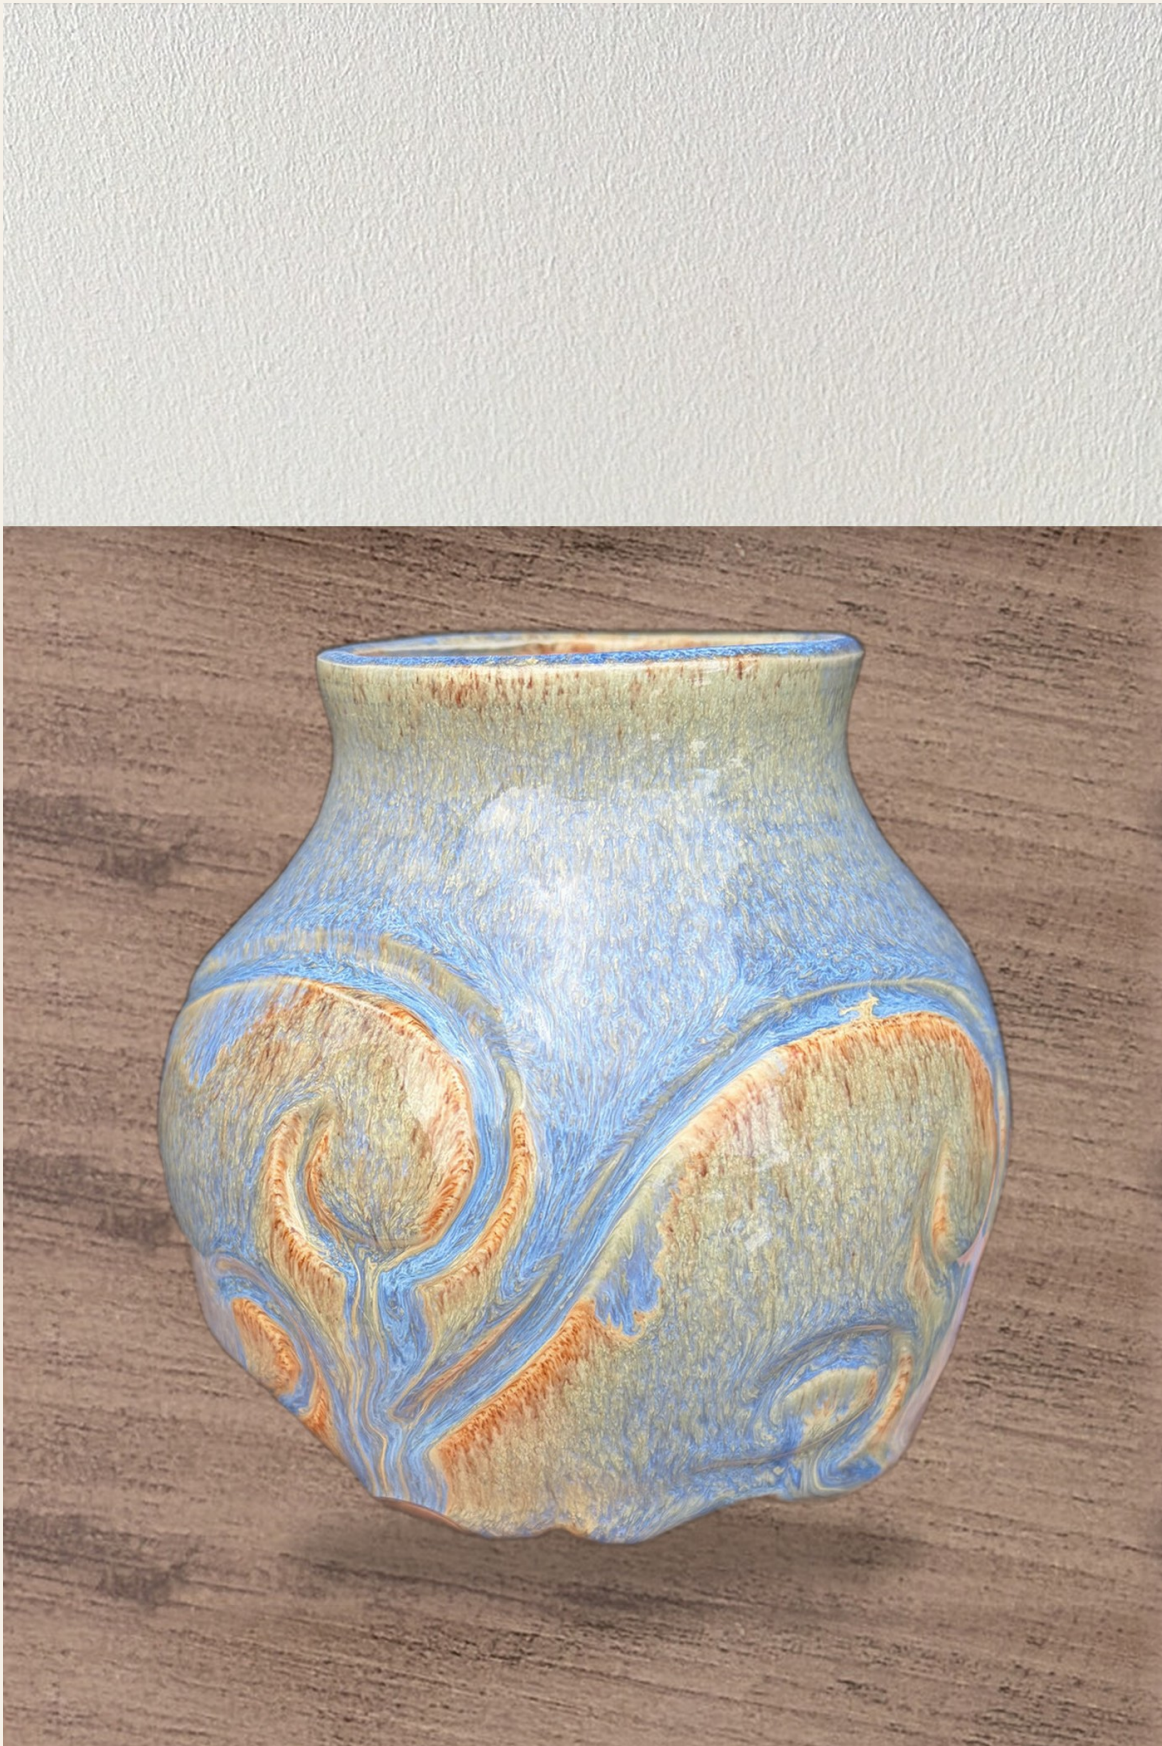

Reactive glaze plate

Palm-sized dish; cream field meeting indigo, teal, and bronze

Marbled dish

Shallow plate; oxblood, cyan, and cream layered in the firing

Bud vase

Small bulbous form; sky-blue and tan marble with rust movement

Exterior

Interior

Yunomi

Olive-tan drip over cerulean; interior pooling at the well

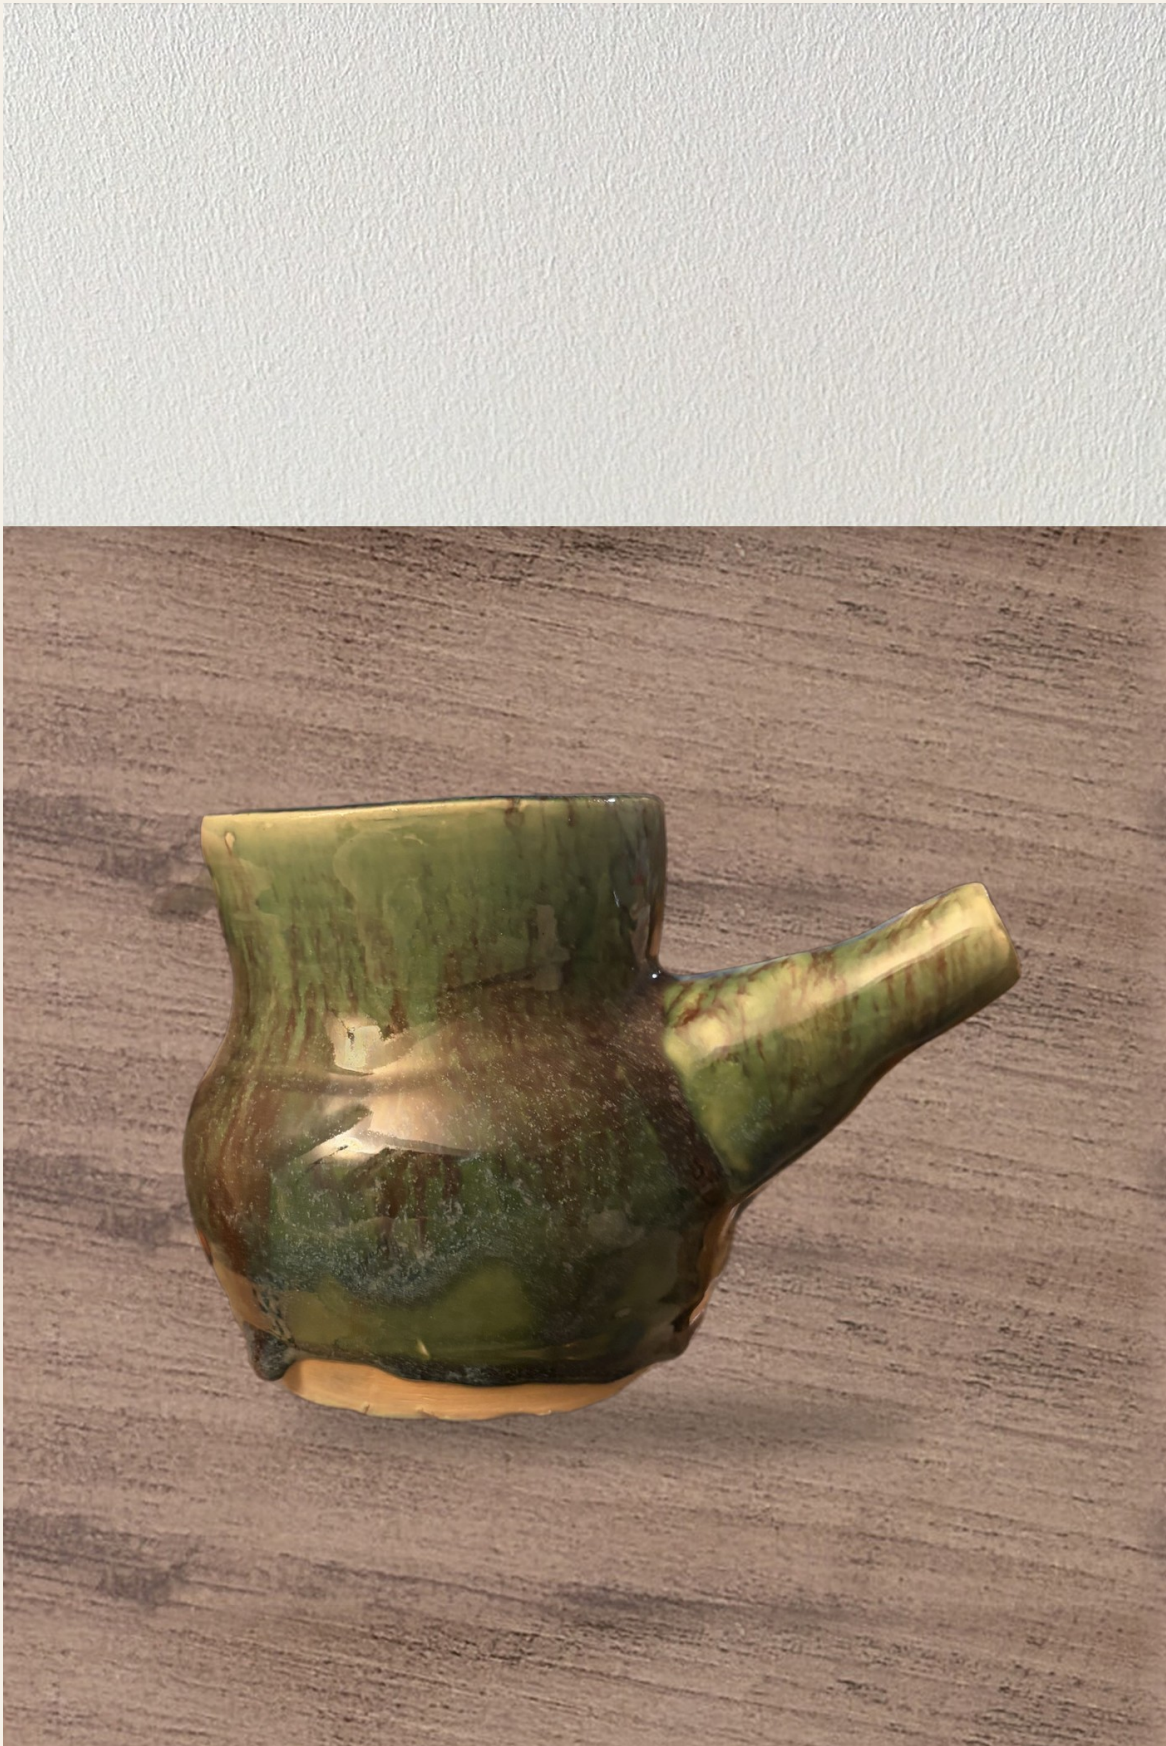

Interior

Exterior

Midnight bowl

Glossy navy interior; exterior wave of pale blue over an unglazed foot

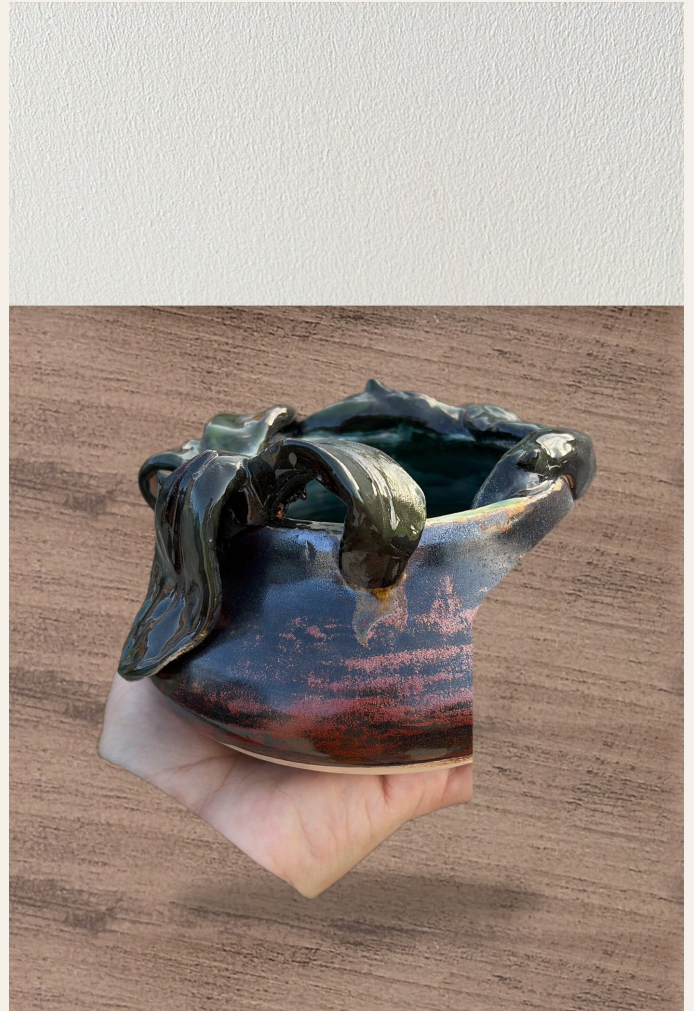

Pitcher

Handled pouring form; moss and forest-green glaze with iron streaks

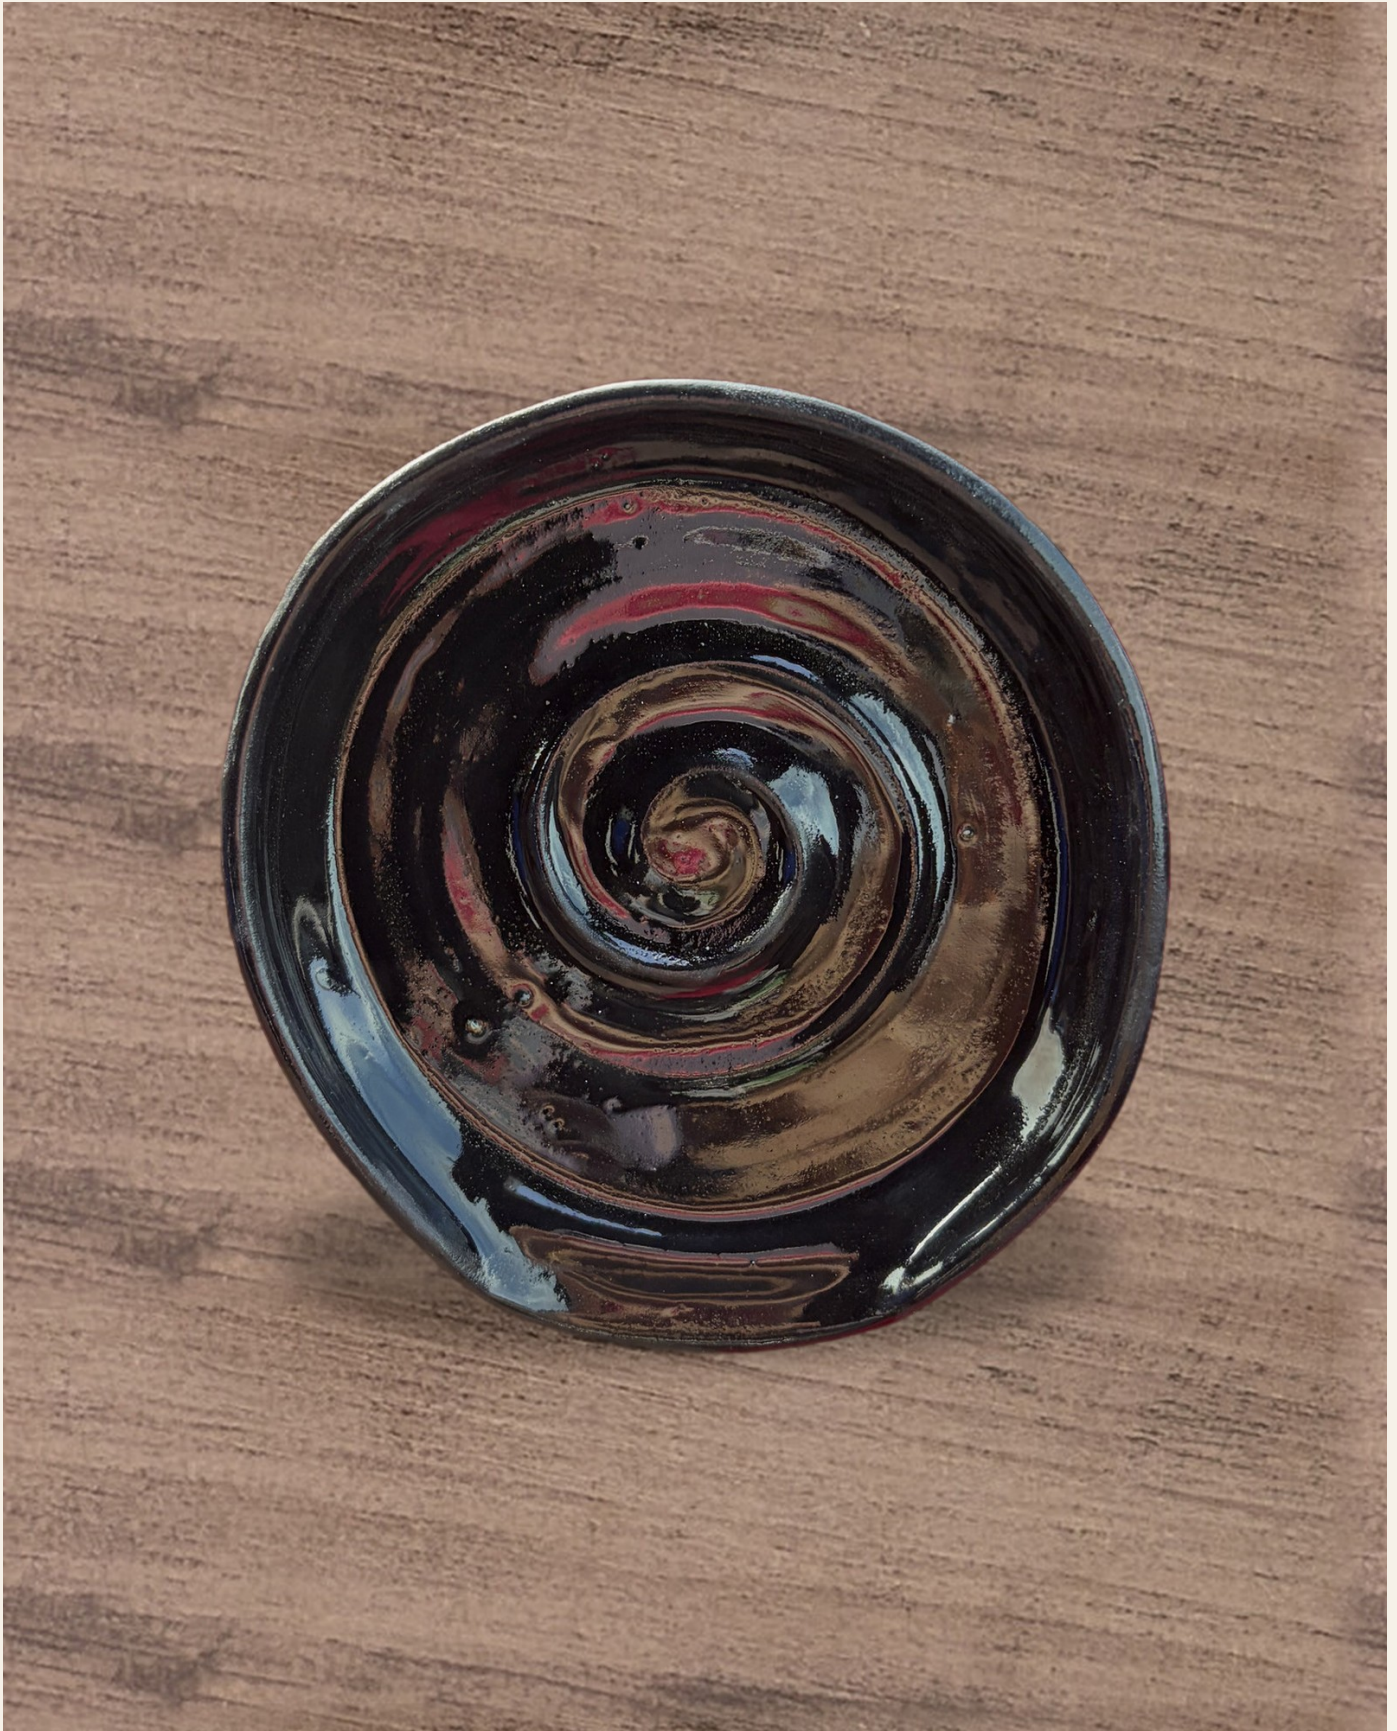

Interior

Side

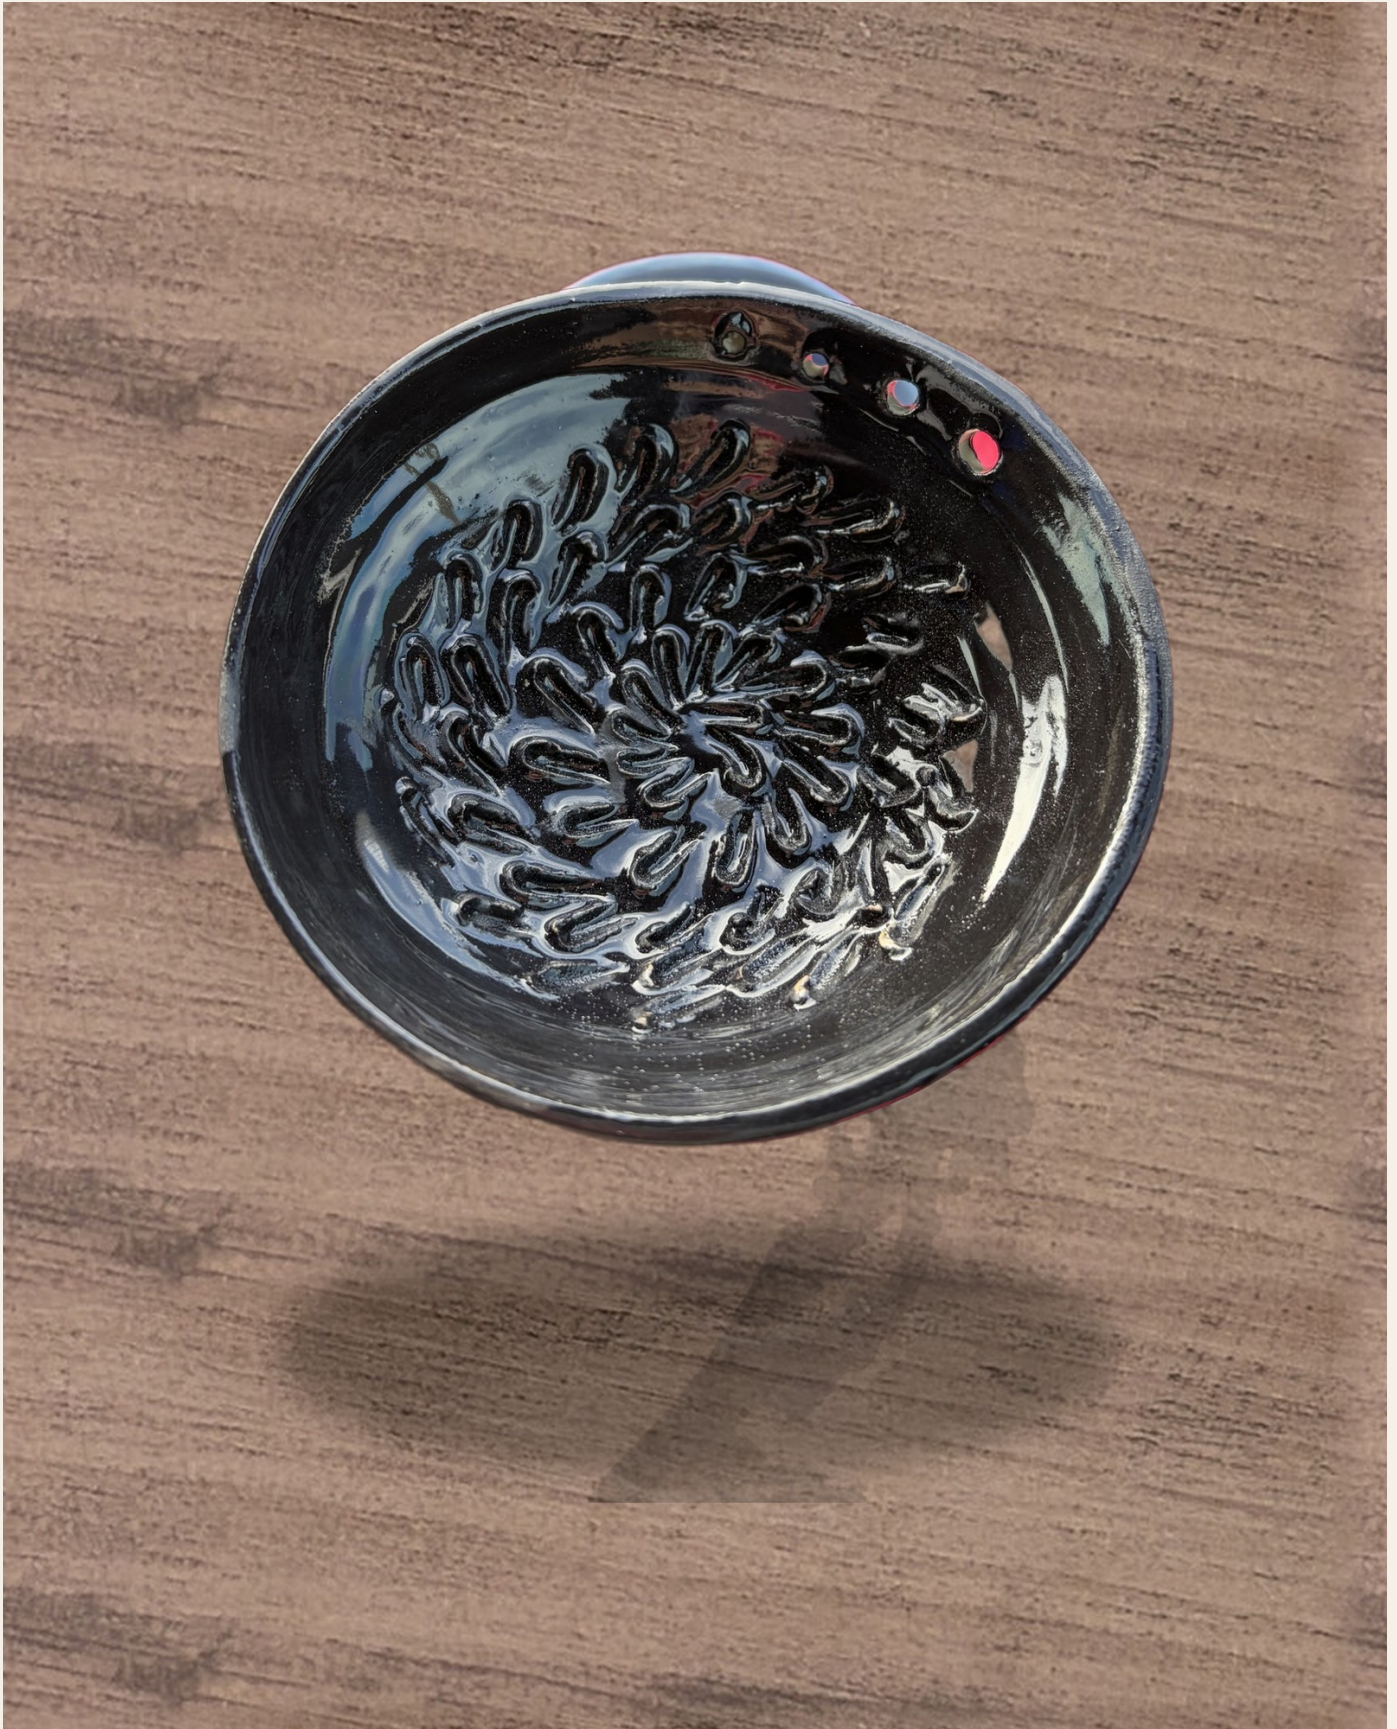

Sculptural bowl

Leaf-like rim attachments; spiral well, metallic body, dark green glaze

Spiral dish

Palm-sized black glaze with a continuous interior spiral

Garlic grater

Black glazed grater with raised spiral teeth and three rim holes

On the wheel

Leather-hard carving: radiating teardrop texture before firing

Lidded dish

Speckled cream glaze with a red heart finial

Folded-rim bowl

Pinched tri-lobe rim; cobalt, periwinkle, and sage interior

NOTES

About this portfolio

These photographs are the artist's own records of finished and in-process work.

Pottery is shown as fired. Surroundings were replaced with the wall and wood from the earth-tone set, so the book reads as one studio.

Where several frames showed the same piece, the clearest detail views were kept and weaker duplicates were set aside.

Work includes wheel-thrown and hand-built forms, reactive and layered glazes, carved and sculptural surfaces, and functional ware.

Mennatallah Rihan
menna.rihan@outlook.com