

MENNATALLAH RIHAN

Ceramics

a scrapbook of recent work

earth-tone collection

Hand-thrown and hand-built stoneware

Earth-tone collection

Six related forms in tan, amber, and chocolate glazes

the set

Wheat pair

Carved cylinder and matching letter holder; tan rim over pooled chocolate

cylinder and holder

Carved tumbler

Dark iron glaze over wheat-stalk relief; unglazed foot

tumbler

Lidded ware

Amber jar with knob lid; speckled cream dish with a heart finial

amber jar

heart dish

Pour-over set

Conical dripper and mug; reactive teal, cobalt, and copper

stacked

side by side

Mug and plate

Matching set in use, and the plate's cream, indigo, and bronze well

in use

the plate

Marbled set

Shallow plate and small bowl; oxblood, cyan, and cream in the firing

plate

bowl

Bud vases

Swirled blue-and-tan marble; low form in teal with rust flashing

swirl

low vase

Yunomi

Olive-tan drip over cerulean; interior pooling at the well

exterior

interior

Midnight bowl

Pale-blue wave over a dark body; glossy navy well

exterior

interior

Green ware

Handled pitcher with iron streaks, and a small moss-green cup

pitcher

cup

Sculptural bowl

Leaf-like rim attachments; spiral well and metallic body

interior

side

Frog salt cellar

Pinched cellar with painted eyes, salt, and a small spoon

from above

three-quarter

Spiral black

Palm dish with a continuous spiral; garlic grater with rim holes

dish

grater

Folded-rim bowl

Pinched tri-lobe rim; cobalt, periwinkle, and sage interior

folded rim

On the wheel

Leather-hard carving: radiating teardrop texture before firing

leather-hard

NOTES

About this scrapbook

Most pieces were photographed on the same studio set — a wood table against a white wall — so the book reads as one sitting. Where a piece has not been re-shot yet, the earlier frame is kept as it was taken: full photograph, nothing cropped from the pot.

Near-duplicate frames of the same view were reduced to the clearest view. Pottery itself is unretouched.

Wheel-thrown and hand-built stoneware:
reactive glazes, carved surfaces, functional ware.

Mennatallah Rihan
menna.rihan@outlook.com